Don't waste your money or your time....By BufordI usually only write a review for products I really like, but this purchase merits a 1 star review because I really DIDN'T like it. As a retired ICU nurse who has type II diabetes and has at least 1 smoothie daily, I was hoping this little book would contain some ideas for smoothies I had not considered.It was a profound disappointment. I have no idea what kind of education or training the author has, but she does not have a good understandingof the pathophysiology of diabetes, or of glycemic index or load. For example, she has one recipe for a smoothie which includes whole apples and pears-and she advises peeling the fruit? Why in the world would you peel and destroy the fiber and nutritional value which is in the peel of these fruits? Yes, I know that apple peel can contain some pesticides-if you don't eat organic, it is easy to scrub them before you eat them.In another, she describes juicing 3 oranges to add to the smoothie-and in another, using 1 cup orange juice. You might as well just add a cup of sugar to your recipe, Amanda! It is not news to any of us who are paying attention that the juice from citrus is highly glycemic, but eating the fruit itself provides some protection by slowing down the absorption of the sugar. She describes using almond milk or greek yoghurt, but I don't see any mention of using a protein powder to increase protein, which is good for diabetics.So in summary-this book is not only useless for diabetics, but could be harmful to the newly diagnosed or less informed consumer, trying to find their way to better health. I do not recommend it.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Good list of smoothiesBy davidpGood list of smoothies.. But.. wish there was a "pick one or two" item (vegetables/fruits/carbs) per category to make it simple. I juice 1st AM and I don't really want to deal with a following recipe..0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy AnamaGreat book with wonderfull recipes

Diabetic Smoothie Recipes The central factor in managing diabetes is the control of blood sugar. If you have diabetes, your choice of food matters a lot.
